

This Is Why Rainbow Have Seven Colours

Once upon a time, there were a king and a queen living in a small island called Happy Land. The king and the queen had waited for over ten years to have a baby, but they did not have one.

One day, the queen took a magic medicine which was given by the royal doctor. After the queen took the medicine, she was pregnant and seven beautiful daughters were born at a birth. It was very surprised and joyful to the royal family.

The names of the seven daughters were Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Indigo and Violet. Since they had the same faces, their parents dressed them up according to the colour of their names. This helped them to identify their daughters easily. The seven little girls were curious about everything and they liked to go everywhere to have fun and adventure too!

One day, the girls went out without their parents' permission. They went to the forest. They walked and walked to a place which was far away from the palace. They found a silver white river with sparkling stars and it was curvy. They cried out with joy when they saw such a beautiful view. Beside the river, there was a warning sign saying 'Please don't jump into the river, mysterious thing will happen if you do so!' The little girls did not care about it. They jumped into the river in excitement and disappeared immediately.

The king and the queen cried for a very long time because of the lost of their daughters. After crying for a hundred years, the angels of the clouds felt sorrow for them, so they gave a big rain to the earth. The heavy rain lasted for three days. The heavenly god heard them crying. He stopped the rain and gave the earth a beam of sun light. A very beautiful seven-coloured curve, the rainbow, appeared in the sky. When the king and the queen looked up, they saw their seven daughters were smiling to them.
